Every tree has a story, but how does it end?

We all know the value of trees, whether they are standing in a wooded grove, filling a log truck, or anchoring a family meal. Strangely, we don’t value urban trees in quite the same way. Communities and homeowners plant and nurture trees to add beauty and value to the urban landscape. But these same trees are usually discarded when they need to be removed due to death, disease, or other causes. Members of the Urban Wood Network want to tell a different story. We aim to find the highest and best use for every removed urban tree and invest that value back into our homes and local communities.

@urbanwoodnetwork

Funding for this Proposition 68 Grant has been provided through the California Department of Forestry & Fire Protection (CAL FIRE) Urban & Community Forestry Program

This project has been partially funded by the USDA Forest Service’s National Urban and Community Forestry Challenge Cost Share Grant Program addressing goals in the National Ten Year Urban and Community Forestry Action Plan.

urbanwoodnetwork.org